Gospel concert is first performance

JET to re-open doors Feb. 24

After being closed for almost two years due to the expansion of the Library and upgrades to the Cultural Centre, the John Elliott Theatre has confirmed performance dates for shows open to the public.

On Sunday, Feb. 24 at 2 p.m. the Theatre, in partnership with the Canadian Caribbean Association of Halton, is presenting John Campbell's Gospel Concert.

Campbell has been composing and performing since childhood. His music can best be described as Adult Contemporary/Soul though his musical range is more far-reaching and inclusive.

His musical influences include such heavyweights as Marvin Gaye, Luther Vandross, Seal and Sting. His original compositions draw on deeply personal themes, but appeal to a universal audience. This performance is also a part of the region-wide celebration of Black History Month.

On Saturday, March 30 at 8 p.m., the Theatre is working with the local performing arts community including musical director, Dale Wood, to produce Dale Wood and Friends. This fun-filled musical event will feature many local singers and popular music. The funds raised at this Gala event will go towards the Perchance to Dream fundraising program for the Library and Cultural Centre.

Tickets for both of these events and many more are available at the newly-renovated theatre box office, adjacent to the Library entrance at the Cultural Centre. Due to the harmonization of the library and theatre functions, the box office is now open the same hours of the Georgetown Branch Library.

The theatre box office can also be reached through the Town website at www.haltonhills.ca/theatre or by calling 905-877-3700.
