Locally based band Thunderhawks was one of four musical acts to perform at the recent Sonar2Voice concert at Christ the King Secondary School.

CtK Sonar2Voice series has gone international

(Just last week, the federal government narrowly voted down legislation that would prohibit the importation of shark fins).

Knowlton, who said he's become a full-fledged "techie" in helping set up the elaborate stage and sound system, which rattled windows on the third floor of the school during the concert, notes that the show was also viewed live by about 75 students in a theatre of the Walnut Elementary School near Austin, Texas.

In a strange coincidence, for the past three years talk show host Ellen DeGeneres has had guests on the program to discuss the same topic as the Sonar2Voice just prior to the concert taking place.

This year, actor Kyle Chandler's 11-year-old daughter Sawyer spoke with DeGeneres about the young marine activist's crusade against shark finning and CtK Green Club students contacted her about Sonar2Voice. Chandler attends the Walnut Springs school and arranged to watch the concert with her classmates on Skype, emailing questions for Stewart to answer.

Knowlton said he's been contacted by several schools across North America that have watched the Sonar2Voice concerts and would like to use the concept to do something similar with their students.

"It bodes well for the future," he added.

"I've run many events where you get a motivational speaker come in and talk for a lot of money for 50 minutes and the kids are engaged as listeners, but they leave and forget pretty much most of what they heard. When you combine the arts, especially with artistic students from your school together and you express the same information in different ways, it was educational and fun at the same time. Rob Stewart was a big catch for us and he wanted to be here because he loves the fact that young people are taking an interest in issues like this. Kids can lead now. They can take something they can handle and explore it and do something with it. They don't have to wait until they're 50 years old and have three PhDs to accomplish something."

Last year's American Idol finalist, Hollie Cavanagh, had committed to perform at the concert but a scheduling conflict wouldn't allow it, so she sent a video message to the students offering encouragement.
