Flint, Pioneers close in on title

Georgetown's Cameron Flint and his University of Denver Pioneers are just two wins away from an NCAA Division I men's field lacrosse title.

The 22-year-old senior midfielder will see his college career come to an end one way or another this weekend in the City of Brotherly Love as the fourth-ranked Pioneers have made the NCAA's Final Four for the second time in three years, this time at Lincoln Financial Field in Philadelphia.

They'll take on the top-seeded Syracuse Orange in one of Saturday's semifinals at 5 p.m. in a contest broadcast in the U.S. on ESPN2. The Duke Blue Devils face the Big Red of Cornell in the other semifinal.

Flint had three assists for Denver in last Sunday's miraculous comeback from six goals down against North Carolina as the Pioneers prevailed 12-11 in the national quarterfinals at Lucas Oil Stadium in Indianapolis.

Denver advanced to the Final Four in 2011 before losing to Virginia 14-8 and lost by one goal in last year's quarterfinals to eventual NCAA-champion Loyola.

Flint, a former Halton Hills Jr. B Bulldog and Brampton Jr. A Excelsior, is expected to be among the top picks in the National Lacrosse League draft in September.

Klarners strike gold
