

More submissions wanted for video contest

Organizers of the Small Town Living At Its Best video contest are seeking more submissions before the Monday, April 28 deadline (5 p.m.)

All videos should reflect the new community brand— Small Town Living at Its Best. Two minutes is the maximum length, and videos must be posted on YouTube or another on-line service. They can be any combination of video, still photos, illustrations, text, talk or music, which could be assembled with free on-line software. Kids must have parental permission.

Prizes with a value of at least $100 are offered for videos in three categories. The first is Community, showing the mutual support that enhances our quality of life. The second is Character, demonstrating how we are friendly, lively and down-to-earth. The third is Countryside, stressing the benefits from local farms and nature areas.

Winning videos will be shown at the #H5— Health Home and Happiness show, May 2-3 at the Mold-Masters SportsPlex.

For more information, rules and an entry form for the contest, send an email to: marnie@communicationartistry.ca. Info: http://www.haltonhillschamber.on.ca/news_events/video_contest.asp
