'Batman' pays a visit to Extendicare Halton Hills

A special guest dropped by Extendicare Halton Hills recently to visit with residents and help staff members celebrate Nurses Week.

Brampton Batman is a late-night fixture on the streets of our neighbouring city to the east and while he leaves crimefighting to the proper authorities, the Dark Knight enjoys spreading goodwill amongst citizens and having his picture taken with them.

Extendicare resident program manager Carmella Di Pietro said the mysterious Brampton Batman responded to tweets and texts requesting his presence and he graciously accepted the invitation to visit Georgetown.

So just who is this caped crusader? www.bramptonguardian.com/news-story/4300882-video-brampton-batman-fights-crime-without-violence/

See what your candidate has to say

As the provincial election quickly approaches, on June 12, Halton Region has prepared a questionnaire for the provincial election candidates from the ridings of Burlington, Halton, Oakville and Wellington-Halton Hills on the issues that are important to Halton residents. The questionnaire deadline was May 23, and the received responses are now online at www.halton.ca/ontarioelection2014.

Questions asked were based on Halton Region's advocacy plan—Advocating for a Strong Halton. This plan was developed to highlight and provide information to Halton residents and the provincial and federal governments regarding some of the challenges and critical issues related to Halton's future. Issues such as infrastructure, costs associated with growth, housing, public health and provincial cost sharing agreements are all issues that have been identified by residents as important to them and their families.

"This questionnaire is an important tool in understanding the candidates' positions on the issues that are important to Halton residents," commented Regional Chair Gary Carr.
