

Men to walk in heels to show support for Halton Women's Place

For the first time, the Georgetown Rotary is organizing its own "Hope in High Heels" event for Halton Women's Place (HWP).

Hope in High Heels has been one of the shelter's main fundraisers for the last four years, which has men walking in heels (shoes provided by HWP).

"We are so thrilled to have Georgetown participating in this fun and unique event," said Carm Bozzo, Development Manager, Halton Women's Place. "We know with the hard work and dedication of the Rotary Club we will see so many great men committed to ending violence against women and we look forward to a great turn out."

Hope in High Heels will be held on Saturday, July 12 on Main St. in Downtown Georgetown. Registration is at 10 a.m. at the corner of Main and James

Sts. The walk, which begins at 11 a.m., is three blocks long along Main St., from James to Church St.

Proceeds from Hope in High Heels will go directly to an updated security system for Halton Women's Place, which provides a safe haven, information and education to support a future without abuse for women and their children in the Halton Region community.

Registration fee is $30 per person (non-tax receiptable) or $10 for high school students, and includes the rally, welcome kit, and lunch. Tax receipts will be issued for all pledges over $20. To register online, visit <https://www.gifttool.com/athon/SignUpMode?ID=85&AID=2751>

Tech-Tire Auto Repair opens in Georgetown

Toqueer Naz shows Mayor Rick Bonnette the finer points of their new state-of-the-art wheel alignment machine during the grand opening of Tech-Tire Auto Repair. Haris Naz, Yousaf Hameed and Khurram Naz show the congratulatory greetings the mayor provided for the opening of the auto repair, car sales and gas station businesses that the Naz brothers recently opened at the corner of Trafalgar Rd. and Maple Ave.
