Civic Centre is a quarter century old

Town of Halton Hills marked the 25th anniversary of the Civic Centre's opening this week with the unsealing of artifacts and materials from a time capsule that was buried on the grounds of the Maple Ave. building.

Current and former Town employees were in attendance for the occasion, including Russ Miller, who was the Mayor of this municipality a quarter century ago on the day the facility opened, which attracted approximately 600 curious onlookers.

The contents of the 700-pound time capsule were on display throughout the building and included items such as design plans, newspapers and phone books. Slide shows also offered a reflection of what some local landmarks looked like then.

Mayor Rick Bonnette, who was a Councillor when the Civic Centre, remarked that there was a lot of controversy at the time of the opening because of its $6.1-million price tag, but with department offices based at different locations throughout the Town, it was important to bring them all under one roof.

Plans are in the works to compile items for another time capsule to be buried in the same location.
