

Slammer time!

Halton Hills Hydro issues warning about door-to-door marketing scam

Halton Hills Hydro (HHH) is warning area residents of a door-to-door marketing scam in town.

HHH urges people to be wary of individuals soliciting door-to-door claiming to be part of saveONenergy and asking to inspect residents' homes or furnaces.

HHH and saveONenergy do not solicit door-to-door.

Anyone who is solicited by phone or at the door, should not provide any personal information, including their Halton Hills Hydro account number and shouldn't let anyone into their home unless they are sure of their identity.

SaveONenergy is a province-wide energy conservation program coordinated by the Ontario Power Authority. In Halton Hills this program is administered exclusively by HHH. There are a number of programs available including incentives for heating and cooling system upgrades. If you are interested in learning more about these programs, visit the HHH website at haltonhillshydro.com.

If you receive suspicious solicitation by phone or at the door, call HHH at 519-853-3701 or report the scam to the Canadian Anti-Fraud Centre at 1-888-495-8501.
