

CR-V offers up a few firsts

litres with the seat folded.

A first for CR-V (on all but the base LX) is the inclusion of a seven-inch touchscreen telematics display, which acts like a smartphone letting the user pinch, swipe or tap.

Also part of this is the optional next-generation HondaLink satellite navigation system, which is super accurate as I found out earlier this year in the Honda Fit.

For those not interested in the sat-nav system, the CR-V still has a full-colour intelligent Multi-Information Display (i-MID) that offers a range of customizable features via fingertip controls on the steering wheel.
