Acton man recounts his life's adventures in memoir

Local author John D. Wilson will be at The Roxy in Acton on Tuesday, March 10, 7-9 p.m., to launch his recently published memoir In Other Worlds.

Wilson and his wife Gloria spent 20 years among a remote tribal group in Papua, Indonesia. They raised their three sons there, learned the then-unwritten Yali language, helped plant a vibrant church, taught literacy and translated the Bible into the local language.

In his deeply compelling and sensitively written memoir, Wilson draws the reader into other worlds, some of them exotic, beautiful and full of extraordinary drama. You will encounter hidden valleys, ancient cultures, tribal warriors, heroic feats and the exhilaration and horror encountered when life is lived on the edge.

Ultimately, Wilson

said, the reader is drawn into the inner world of self-doubt, demons from the past and the longing for a significant life that marks the lives of all men and women. It is a story of beauty, unfolding throughout its pages the redemption and grace that waits on the other side of hardship, he said.
