

HOME, LAWN & GARDEN

Plan your wasp defence now

From minor irritations to severe allergic reactions, don't let bees and wasps be a buzz-kill this year. Bee- and wasp-proofing should start as soon as temperatures begin to rise, as colonies begin anew each spring.

- Regularly inspect the perimeter of your home for nests. If you suspect the presence of bees or wasps, reach out to your local pest management professional to evaluate and remove the nest. Bees and other pollinators may be protected by local or national laws, so contact your pest management professional for advice on how to handle your specific situation.

- Caulk any cracks or crevices around the exterior of your building.
- Avoid attractants such as brightly coloured and fragrant flowers. Choosing outdoor décor with dark or neutral colours can discourage flying pests.
- Cover any food sources left outdoors, such as picnic spreads, pet food, garbage containers and compost piles.
