Protect your skin from the sun

Summer is finally here. But after months of dark, dreary days, chances are you may need a refresher in how to keep your family sun-safe.

Banana Boat sun care has partnered with dermatologist Dr. Julia Carroll to recommend these five ways to protect your family's skin this summer:

- Keep it handy - Sunscreen should be applied before heading outdoors, so keep a bottle handy on the kitchen counter, or the front hall of your house, to make this easier to remember. Don't forget your ears, lips, shoulders and nose.

- You always need it - Even if you are only planning to drive from one indoor location to another, UVA rays can penetrate glass so get in the habit of applying sunscreen as part of your family's morning routine, just like brushing your teeth!

- Limit exposure - The sun's rays are strongest between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.
