Acton Fire Fighters Association plans an explosive Canada Day

Acton is once again looking forward to Canada Day fireworks, and the members of the Acton Fire Fighters Association will have everything ready to go.

Fireworks Chairman Dave Pratt describes the work setting off such a large display.

"We have a dozen of our members who take special training to be specially certified to light the fireworks, and we start setting up the mortars hours before nightfall. There is a lot of preparation that goes into it."

This year marks the 45th year that the firefighters have put on the show.

"We started doing this in 1970, so there are a couple of generations that have grown up with our fireworks."

While Pratt describes the evening display as a labour of hometown love, the firefighters finance the Canada Day celebration mostly through donations made at the gate.

"We spend upwards of $20,000, about as much as Hamilton, on fireworks alone and I think that because our show is so big that some folks still believe that it is government-funded. Without the donations from local
