IN BRIEF

Dance school marks 20 years

The Casey School of Highland Dance celebrates its 20th anniversary this year teaching children in Georgetown and surrounding areas how to perform the traditional dance.

Business owner and operator Sharon Casey, along with professional instructors Laura (Casey) Hennery and Erin Myers teach not only dances such as the Highland Fling, Pas de Basques and the Sword Dance to name a few, they also teach perseverance, self-confidence and self-respect.

The dance school also has been known to support local businesses by hosting fund-raisers for local charities.

Casey's level of spirit and charisma is strongly supported by her ability to instill the "art of never giving up" to each and every Highland Dancer that enters into the Casey School of Dance.

This is a unique family business operates out of the basement of the Casey home at 140 Mowat Cres., Georgetown, 905-877-4233 or e-mail cshdancing@hotmail.com.
