

Craft Beer Festival to aid charity

Four Georgetown service clubs (Kinsmen, Kiwanis, Lions and Rotary) are collaborating to host "Head for the Hills" Georgetown Craft Beer Festival, which will be held at Trafalgar Sports Park in Georgetown.

Craft beer festivals are successful events. When they are good, they grow fast. Organizers expect 2,000 attendees in Year 1, with rapid growth to a potential 15,000 attendees in Year 5. The inaugural event, on Sept. 19 (noon to 6 p.m.), will feature 25 craft brewers in attendance, and a variety of gourmet food trucks on site.

Tickets are $20 in advance ($25 at the door), which includes a glass and four beer tokens (4 oz.

each). Additional tokens are $1 each. Local musicians will entertain the crowd while they sample the best in small and unique brews. Local band Dayfoot will be on stage, 4-5 p.m. and will be followed by another local band, Mountain Lion Trappers, 5-6 p.m. Free busing within Halton Hills will be provided.

Profits from this event will support Food4Kids North Halton, a local charity that provides healthy food to at-risk kids, aged 5-14, on weekends all year round. Who doesn't want to have a good time and accomplish good things while you do it? Details on sponsorship and ticket purchases are at www.headforthehills.ca.
