Town asks couple to take down protest sign

wasn't able to disclose his or her name. This person then hired a registered designer who works for Guildcrest Homes to prepare the necessary design documentation, she said.

Guildcrest Homes is one of the largest modular home manufacturers in Canada that operates a factory just outside Ottawa. Bluestone Group of Oakville is listed as one of the company's authorized builders. Calls and emails to both companies were not replied to by press time.

So do Nesbitt and Anderson have any recourse regarding the new home?

"At this point, I don't think there's anything else that can be done," said Josipovic. "Once the installation of the above-ground structure is completed, we will inspect the framing to make sure the house height complies with the building permit drawing and zoning bylaw. If it's OK, I see no reason to not allow them to continue building."

Now, the couple is trying to come to terms with their new view—a look they feel will affect their business as they commonly have clients over to view the pool and stonework in their backyard.

"Our hard work is overshadowed. This will negatively impact our right to make a living and our enjoyment as a family with a backyard lifestyle,"

Churchill Cres. residents Bob Nesbitt and Anne Anderson put up this sign, which they were later ordered to take down, to protest the large two-storey home that was built four feet away from their property line last week.

said Anderson. "But if it fits within the building code, I guess we will have to learn to live with it."
