Georgetown man places third in 3M Extreme Wrap Challenge

Ben Bieber, a graphics installer from Georgetown won third place in 3M Canada's Extreme Wrap Challenge last month.

As owner of Evil Kitty Graphics, Bieber submitted an extreme example of graphics in use during the Qualifying Round of 3M's Extreme Wrap Challenge (held April 23 until July 31). Bieber's graphic installation of Fetta, a restaurant in Pearson International Airport, caught the attention of the judging panel among 99 entries (submitted by sign shops coast-to-coast) ensuring Bieber, along with Cameron Blancher of Newcastle, Ont. and Dan Desroches of Montreal would compete in the Extreme Wrap Challenge.

The competition was intense. Bieber competed against two very strong contenders in three challenges featuring extreme texture, extreme stretch and extreme temperatures. Each challenge featured a different prop including a bar fridge, a goalie mask and a free-standing wall, which was wrapped in intense heat. The contenders had one hour to complete each prop and all used the same, versatile film, 3M Envision Print Wrap Film 480Cv3 because it works so well on extreme textures, for extreme stretch situations and in extreme temperatures.

Not only does Bieber get the glory of winning third place in 3M's Extreme Wrap Challenge, he also won the Entertainment Experience prize package featuring a drone and a bluetooth speaker. He also received a high-definition action-capturing camera.
