Wrapped up for Christmas

For those Christmas shoppers who have neither the time nor inclination to wrap their gifts over the next week, some volunteers at the Georgetown Market Place would be more than happy to put the finishing touches on your gift-giving. Members of the Georgetown Christian Reformed Church are in the Market Place again this year to wrap your presents in exchange for a free will donation, with proceeds going to the local church's Youth Program and the Georgetown Bread Basket food bank. Bradley Berthelot (far right) had his girlfriend's gifts wrapped up on Tuesday afternoon with the help of (from left) Alice DeKleer, Jake Glockner, Natalie Glockner, Caroline Van den Hoek, Karen Grillenmeier and Natalia DeBoer of the Christian Reformed Church.
