First craft beer festival in Halton Hills raises $5,000 for Food4Kids

The inaugural Georgetown Craft Beer Festival, a.k.a. Head for the Hills, held at Trafalgar Sports Park in September, raised $5,000 for the Food4Kids charity.

A cheque was presented to the charity recently. The event is run by four service clubs from Georgetown— Kiwanis, Lions, Rotary and Kinsmen.

“The September event was a great success and we hope to grow and improve it this year, Sept. 17, 2016 at the Trafalgar Sports Park,” said the clubs in a press release.

Food4Kids provides packages of healthy food for kids, ages 5-14, with limited or no access to food each weekend. The food, prepared by volunteers, are delivered to schools each Friday. There are approximately 1,200 children in Hamilton and 400 in Halton who are being served by this program. It is 100 per cent funded through donations or one-time grants. For details go to www.food4kids.ca

Head for the Hills was held on a stormy September afternoon with enthusiastic attendees ready to try products produced by 23 craft breweries and cideries as well as food trucks. There was live entertainment and games such as Giant Beer Pong. The event drew many from outside Halton Hills, including some from the U.S.
