The Mess Hall Pouterie going live on Breakfast Television

On the morning of Tuesday, Feb. 2, a local pouterie will be showing what they're made of on CITY-TV's Breakfast Television.

The Mess Hall Pouterie, located on Guelph St. in Georgetown, will be demonstrating how they make their savoury chicken shawarma, using ingredients like marinated chicken, vegetable tabbouleh, pickled turnip and garlic tzatziki.

The restaurant will be represented on live television at around 8:10 a.m. by their chef, Kain Smith, in light of their participation in Toronto's district of a Canada-wide event, La Poutine Week.

The week, which will run Feb. 1-7, includes an array of different poutine-specific restaurants strutting their stuff to come up with a unique, creative spin on poutine.

Kristie Dotor, owner of The Mess Hall, encourages all of Halton Hills to come and support them during the week. "We really hope to get people from Georgetown. The competition has a lot to live up to next week," she said.

When La Poutine Week rolled around last year, The Mess Hall was asked to participate. Being just a few months old, the business couldn't afford the $500 participation fee, hesistantly turning down the opportunity.

This year, La Poutine Week organizers asked them again and this time waived the fee, claiming they would love to have them participate this year.

From Feb. 1-7, customers are encouraged to download the La Poutine Week application on their smartphones using The Mess Hall's free Wi-Fi and vote for the restaurant.

The chicken shawarma dish will be available as a monthly special, but votes cast on the application will only be counted during the first week of February.

While the competition runs, the restaurant will continue to offer their daily menu during their regular hours (Tuesday to Thursday 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., Friday 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Saturday 12 p.m. to 9 p.m.)

Remember to tune in to Breakfast Television on Tuesday at 8:10 a.m. to catch Chef Kain Smith making the special dish.
