Police identify 2 friends charged in alleged street racing that killed teen

PAM DOUGLAS

Two friends - one a Brampton resident, the other from Milton - face street racing charges in the death of 19-year-old Rabab Arshad in a horrific crash in Mississauga Monday night, Feb. 5.

Police are now saying there were seven young friends left a Mississauga restaurant just before 11 p.m. in two separate vehicles - a blue Mitsubishi Eclipse and a black Ford Fusion.

Moments later, they were both traveling west on Eglinton Avenue when they "came into slight contact with each other" approaching Mavis Road.

Police said the Mitsubishi went out of control and crashed into a pole. Arshad, a York University student, was thrown from the vehicle and was pronounced dead at the scene.

The Ford Fusion did not crash.

Both drivers were arrested by Peel police and have since been charged with eight criminal driving offences.

A 19-year-old Milton woman was killed when the car in which she was a passenger slammed into a pole at Eglinton Avenue at Mavis Road just before 11 p.m. Monday, Feb. 5. Peel police are blaming a street race for the crash.

sauga woman in the Mitsubishi suffered serious but non-life-threatening injuries and was taken to a Toronto trauma centre. The driver, Muhammad Daniyal Khan, 20, of Brampton was taken to a local hospital also with non-life-threatening injuries.

Police allege Hashim Khan, 22, of Milton was driving the Ford Fusion.

Both Khans, who police say are not related, are facing charges of dangerous driving causing death by street racing, criminal negligence causing death, criminal negligence causing bodily harm by street racing, criminal negligence causing bodily harm, and dangerous driving causing death and bodily harm and criminal negligence causing death and bodily harm.

Police are now asking for witnesses, anyone with video footage or anyone who saw the vehicles prior to the crash to call them at 905-453-2121, ext. 3710.
