

HOCKEY HERITAGE

Capt. Trevor Williams (left) and firefighter Sean McClements of the Halton Hills Fire Department led the Honour Guard, headed up by Acting Captain Shawn Barnes, into the Georgetown Hockey Heritage dinner Monday night, with members of the evening's head table in tow. The GHHC later made a donation of $2,000 to help offset the cost of the new uniforms worn by the Honour Guard on Monday. Eamonn Maher photo

Halton Hills Minor Hockey Association president Bill Curry (left) presents 2018 Georgetown Hockey Heritage Award recipient Dennis Norton with some gifts for his decades of work with the association, more specifically with its introductory program. Norton still volunteers his time with the six-year-olds on Sunday mornings now that his grandson has taken up the sport. Curry said that Norton's vast knowledge in the department of skills development has been a major benefit for the HHMHA over the years.

Independent & Free Press managing editor Chris Vernon presents this year's Georgetown Hockey Heritage Award recipient, Dennis Norton, with a framed copy of his newspaper profile that appeared in January. Norton received congratulatory gifts from local MP Michael Chong, MPP Ted Arnott and from Halton Hills Mayor Rick Bonnette among many well-wishers in the sold-out crowd of more than 300 who attended Monday's event at the Acton Legion.

Referee Mo Schanck (centre) receives an appreciation award from the Georgetown Hockey Heritage Council for his three decades of involvement in the GHHC's fall tournament. Schanck provided a crew of officials for the tourney and officiated in it up until three years ago. Also in the photo (from left) are Finn Poulstrup, John Boyce, Bryan Lewis and Hockey Heritage guest speaker Justine Todd, who recently officiated in the recent Winter Olympics in South Korea. Eamonn Maher photo
