

Throne speech a Liberal campaign commercial

Wellington Halton Hills MPP Ted Arnott says that the Liberal government's decision to pro-rogue legislature is self-serving. "Today's throne speech comes at the end of a Parliament, just before a scheduled provincial election," he said.

"It's disgraceful that the Liberals have chosen to politicize the parliamentary tradition of the throne speech this way," said Arnott.

The speech, delivered by Elizabeth Dowdeswell, Ontario's lieutenant governor, outlined the achievements of the Liberal government in the past four years and announced investments in health care, child care and mental health.

They announced plans to expand the OHIP+ pharmacare program, which provides free medication to those under 24, to a wider population.

Details about the programs and investments will be outlined in the Province's budget, which will be announced on March 28.

"They are willing to say anything to stay in power," said Arnott. "Their campaign promises simply can't be trusted."

... Lend Me Your Ears

GETTING USED TO NEW HEARING INSTRUMENTS Part 1

A patient who has never worn hearing instruments before, or is wearing a new type or circuit may go through a period of adjustment. The following are suggestions to help you through that adjustment period:

Don't get discouraged. It may take time to realize the benefit of your hearing instruments. You have been hearing through a damaged system that has delivered distorted signals to your brain. Now the sounds you are being exposed to are louder and different than what you are used to. In time, your brain will adjust to the new signals it is receiving.

When you first start wearing the hearing instruments, you will suddenly hear sounds you were previously unaware of. Many you will recognize as sounds you used to hear before you had a hearing loss, and others will have to be identified for you. These sounds will seem bothersome at first because you are not used to hearing them. In time, like those with normal hearing, you will unconsciously block out these daily sounds.
