Halton Hills' two-part community spring show is back - and with more than 100 exhibits spanning two arena floors at Mold-Masters SportsPlex, there will be something for the entire family to enjoy.

At Home in the Hills will be showcasing an array of products and services from local businesses, entrepreneurs and community partners, encouraging residents to get acquainted with Halton Hills business owners and to shop locally, chamber of commerce general Manager Kathleen Dills said.

"It's all here in the community and it's an opportunity for our local businesses to get out after a long winter and meet the community face to face," she added.

Aside from the exhibitors, At Home in the Hills will also be offering a variety of entertainment, from local musicians, to dancers, to magicians. And, for the first time this year, it will include a Birds of Prey show.

But the event is not only about local businesses and performers, Dills said. Safe at Home in the Hills will be making its second annual appearance, hosting a separate area of the show, which will contain a wealth of interactive displays organized by Mark Burger of the Halton Hills fire department.

Grade 4 students will have access to this portion of the show during the school day on Thursday, April 19 and Friday, April 20. The show will then open up to the public on the evening on April 20 and into Saturday, April 21.

As part of Safe at Home in the Hills, students will have access to the Halton Hills fire department smoke house, a tool used to teach about fire escape planning; a tangle box, which simulates a ceiling collapse; a Hazmat decontamination system; and a booth with further information about firefighting.

There will also be an ambulance on site, where students will be able to learn the basics of CPR, as well as a bicycle safety station, a water and boat safety exhibit and the opportunity to learn about rail safety.

Then, once Safe at Home in the Hills is open to the public for the weekend, it will offer displays by MADD, Crime Stoppers, Halton Partners for Car Seat Safety and Seniors and Law Enforcement Together (SALT).

Presented by members of Halton Hills Chamber of Commerce, At Home in the Hills will be held at Mold-Masters SportsPlex on April 20-21. For more information, visit <https://www.facebook.com/HaltonHillsHomeShow/>.
