youth play in developing sustainable communities, Dowdeswell said it's relatively easy to get young people on board with environmental initiatives.

"Young people today have that sense of how important it is," said the lieutenant-governor.

Student council leaders from Georgetown District High School and Acton District High School sat in on the discussions.

"I think it's really interesting to hear the town's plans on environmental sustainability and what we in our school communities can do," said Kaslyn Kallio, from Georgetown.

"It was a really valuable opportunity to hear from these amazing voices," said Dhara Patel, the Acton representative.

Building a Better Halton

Employment Halton's job fair supports a robust economy

Halton's low unemployment, skilled workforce and close proximity to the GTA and Hamilton, contribute to our strong job market. Regional programs like the Employment Halton Job Fair support growth by connecting job seekers with employers across the region. This year's job fair will take place on Tuesday, April 17 at the Oakville Conference & Banquet Centre. Each year, Employment Halton supports residents and employers through innovative programs and services including skills training, on-site hiring events, job placements and access to online job boards. To learn more, visit halton.ca/employmenthalton or haltonjobs.ca, or call 311.
