Helson Gallery launches 6th annual local artists' exhibit

Paintings of Ontario landscapes, pieces revealing tidbits about the artist's personal identity and works surrounding surveillance and nuclear war threats are a few examples of what currently adorns the walls of the Helson Gallery.

The gallery has launched its sixth annual Locally Grown series, which will be running until Sept. 9., featuring pieces from 58 local artists of varying levels of experience.

The exhibit showcases works of a number of medias including mixed media, oil, felt, acrylic, photography, watercolour, charcoal and more.

"It's encouraging to see new artists join the exhibition each year," wrote Helson Gallery curator Judy Daley. "I hope our visitors may look forward to follow-
