A proposal is set to go in front of the town's committee of adjustment seeking permission to operate a marijuana production operation at 1 Rosetta St. in Georgetown.

HALTON HILLS GRAPPLES WITH BYLAWS FOR MARIJUANA GROW-OP

For residents on Rosetta Street in Georgetown, a peculiar smell in the neighbourhood has them asking some questions.

They say the skunky smell of marijuana has been hanging in the air intermittently for nearly a year, and now, the town of Halton Hills has notified them that a cannabis production facility is operating in the old mill across the street.

Notices posted on the front door of 1 Rosetta St. indicate that the building is the site of a proposed marijuana operation, and a letter mailed out to residents states that the owners are applying to have the facility conform to the town's by-laws.

"We can't even sit out here some nights, it's so strong," said one resident living across the street. "If I had my choice, I wouldn't let it be here."

Other residents were shocked to learn that the facility existed and had not noticed any smell in the past year.

Yaniv Geler, owner of 1 Rosetta St., hopes to dispel any misconceptions about the site.

"There's a small grower who
