

EAT THIS: THE TOP INGREDIENT TO ACTON'S BAKIN' & EGGS IS TRUST

ROADSIDE SHOP FOR FRESH EGGS AND BAKED GOODS RUNS ON THE HONOUR SYSTEM

In a small, grey shed at the end of a driveway on Dublin Line in Acton, lies Bakin' & Eggs - the spot where local residents can pick up fresh eggs, baked loaves and jam in a jiffy.

It's always open. Even when no one is home, visitors can stop by and help themselves, grabbing the items they desire and leaving the funds for each item in a box.

"It's based on the honour system," said owner Marylyne Hooke. "And for the most part, it works."

The concept for Bakin' & Eggs began two years ago when Hooke began selling eggs in a cooler at the side of the road, with the intention of generating some income required to become a member of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture.

Then, her husband John suggested she try selling her homemade baked goods as well.

So, Hooke baked her well-loved banana bread and the business took off from there.

"I started out just doing it for Saturday and Sunday, so I would bake Friday, and now I bake about four out of seven days of the week," she said.

While Hooke says the banana bread remains her most popular item, she offers a variety of flavours throughout the year, depending on her mood and the season.

Earlier this year, inspired by the cake from the royal wedding, Hooke said she tried her hand at a lemon elderberry loaf and it sold out in no time.

Bakin' & Eggs is currently offering banana bread, blueberry loaf, strawberry jam, strawberry rhubarb jam and fresh omega eggs. In a tent beside the shed, visitors are also able to purchase firewood.
