HALTON POLICE TARGETING RETAIL THEFT WITH NEW WEBSITE

HRPS 1ST SERVICE IN ONTARIO TO USE RETAIL CAMERAS ON PATROL

Halton police have a new weapon in their arsenal to help track down thieves.

The police service is the first in the province to partner with the website Retail COP (Cameras on Patrol) which posts images of shoplifters and retail thieves, typically from store surveillance cameras.

"The reception has been fantastic. By tapping into the knowledge and experience of the loss prevention officers on the ground in stores across Halton we are taking advantage of a previously underutilized resource," said Insp. Bob Gourley, 3 District Operations.

Loss prevention officers have access to the site and any tips sent to the HRPS retail theft unit.

So far, Halton police have invited and trained over 100 loss prevention officers from across the province to take part in the Retail COP program.
