When walking into the rustic-style Appalachian Public Drink House in Georgetown, owners Emanuele and Melanie Nalli want visitors to feel at home.

The family-run eatery and bar offers a gastropub experience of not-so-typical pub fare - as well as a signature bar of 12 varieties of locally-made moonshine, sourced from Murphy's Law Distillery in Elmira, Ont.

"Our food is a little more elevated from your typical pub food and it's fresh, of course, and in-house made," Emanuele said, adding that Appalachian is in the process of changing up its menu.

The new offerings will include a Creole stir fry, mushroom Alfredo linguine, bacon-wrapped meat loaf and a 10-ounce striploin steak dinner.

The menu also has a number of gluten free options.

As for the moonshine, visitors
