

Simple Storage Boxes

Like the birdhouse, simple boxes are an excellent project with a useful result. Sizes can be custom suited to your child's needs. Boxes can have lids or not, and can be used to store art supplies, toys or your child's prized possessions. Your kids have the freedom to decorate it with all sorts of things. From paint, magazine clippings, to glitter and more.

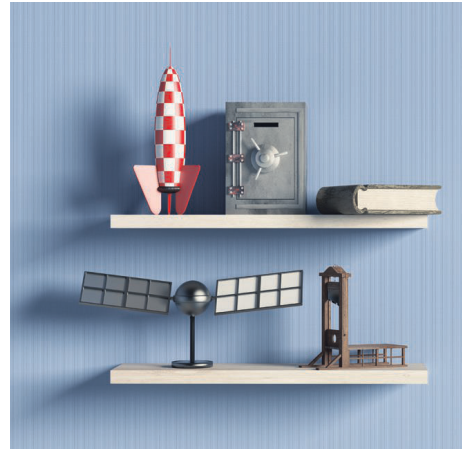

Bedroom Shelf

Keeping with the theme of organizing, it's always great to have your kids' stuff off the floor and clear up room on dresser tops. Building wall shelving for your child's rooms is a great way to display action figures, books, sports trophies/medals, creations or any other proud achievement.

Shelving is a great project to teach you kids how to safely attach and hang projects to the walls.

A great idea to display sports trophies or memorabilia is to incorporate items like hockey sticks, baseball bats or other sports equipment into the structural components of the shelf.

And again, allowing your child to paint or decorate it gives them a sense of completion when the project is done.

Ensure the stool is structurally solid, as we don't want any falls if the stool construction gives way.

Step Stool

Kids are short. A small step stool can go a long way allowing them to reach items on the counter, brush their teeth at the vanity and reach items on the shelf you just built!

Plans are available online, or you can design your own.

Creating something with your child is a great way to spend quality time together. By starting with simple but useful projects, a passion for building and creating may be ignited in your child. It can also build confidence in your child and provide them with a hobby that could last a lifetime. For a full day of DIY fun for the entire family, and for more tips from Jordan Spear on how to introduce your kids to DIY projects and renovations, bring the kids down to the 2019 GTA Home & Reno Show this Family Day weekend (February 15 – 18) at the International Centre in Mississauga, or visit www.gtahomeandrenoshow.com. Free day care and kid's projects are available so parents can explore the show stress-free while the kids are occupied.
