MISINFORMATION ON VACCINATION WORRIES OAKVILLE DOCTOR

As a doctor in our community, I'm increasingly worried about misinformation in the news and on social media about vaccination.

In medical school, doctors are taught to "do no harm," which makes it hard for us to live up to our professional responsibility when we see people choosing not to get vaccinated because of fake news.

The facts are clear - since the introduction of the measles, mumps and rubella vaccine there's been a 99 per cent reduction in cases. And, since Canada introduced the polio vaccine, the disease has been eradicated. These conditions are debilitating and deadly.

Because childhood vaccinations are proven safe and effective in Ontario, we've forgotten how quickly and easily these diseases can spread and how devastating they can be. And we all need to get vaccinated if we can, because "herd immunity" matters. Herd immunity is like building a wall to keep illness at bay, and each person who gets vaccinated is another brick in that wall.

If you have concerns, talk to your doctor about vaccines and don't spread fake news or misinformation.

Get the facts from a professional - get the facts from a doctor.

ANSWER TO DISTRACTED DRIVING IS EASY, PUT DOWN YOUR PHONE

I read with great interest the article in the Mar. 28 issue by Herb Garbutt on distracted driving. It's encouraging to know people are becoming more aware.

However, it is shocking that distracted driving accounts for almost 40 per cent of all the tickets Const.

Marc Taraso issued in Halton in 2019 so far.

Drivers know it's expensive when they get caught. It doesn't seem to be a deterrent for some drivers. This is what we can do to save lives.

It's not the end of the world if you pick up the phone while driving - but it could be the end of your world.

That's distracted driving. Is it worth the risk? Don't be tempted. Put your phone away before you drive. Be safe and stay alive.

Sometimes the biggest problem has the simplest solution. Eventually it will become a habit, like putting on your seatbelt. Actually when the phone is put away, there is a sense of freedom of obligation and the driver can concentrate on driving.

It's all so easy. All you need is the will.
