Cadets from across Canada gathered in Victoria, B.C. from May 5 to May 8, for the National Marksmanship Championship.

Five cadets from Georgetown, from the 676 Lorne Scots, competed. It was the first time competing for four cadets, Master Warrant Officer Lexi Allinott, Sgt. Andrea Dudgeon, Lt. Cpl. Hannah-Bella Gilmer and Cpl. Mark James. Master Warrant Officer Rachel Cameron, was competing for a second time.

"It's stressful at times," Allinott said.

"Our team has a good way of handling stress," Cameron said. "We'll play music in the change room and dance it out. Other teams will sit off to the side and get more stressed, but we celebrate it."

Cameron said the team looks at the competition as an opportunity to learn and to improve.

"Even if we don't shoot well, we learn from our mistakes," Allinott said.

The Georgetown team placed in sixth out of 22 teams and 110 cadets, second in all of Ontario, and brought home three medals and a pin for individual results.

However, for some cadets, the competition has led to opportunities within the cadets. Three cadets from Georgetown qualified for the national rifle team: Cameron, Allinott, and Master Warrant Officer Patrick Ready. Only 18 cadets from across the country are selected for the team.

The national rifle team will spend the summer in Bisley, U.K. To qualify for the team, Cameron said, it took four years.

"You start with basic shooting, shooting Daisy air rifles," Cameron said.

From there, the top 80 cadets advance to shooting C11 rifles at targets as far as 800 meters away. The top 30 from that division progress to shooting C12 rifles, up to 900 meters, where the top 18 join the national team.
