CRIME

CARJACKING, BANK ROBBERY HAS POLICE HUNTING SUSPECTS

BRYAN MYERS

bmyers@metroland.com

A vehicle taken in an armed carjacking in Georgetown may have been used in a bank robbery in Richmond Hill.

On Dec. 28, two suspects approached a man at a home near Argyll Road and Eighth Line in Georgetown around 10:45 p.m.

One of the suspects pointed a pistol at the victim and demanded he put his belongings and keys on the ground and get on his knees.

The victim complied and the suspects picked up the keys and got in the vehicle, a grey 2017 Dodge Durango and left the scene.

The first suspect is a black man, approximately 5'7" with an average build. He was wearing a black sweatshirt, reading glasses, and had covered his face with a mask. The man was holding the gun in his right hand.

No description was made available for the second suspect.

Graham Paine/Torstar

Knife and gun seen during Oakville robbery.

On Dec. 30, a similar vehicle was identified at the scene of a bank robbery, 8670 Bayview Dr., in Richmond Hill. Three men, one armed with a handgun, fled the scene.

Police would neither confirm nor deny a link between the carjacking and robbery.

Anyone with information can call police at 905-825-4747 or Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-8477.
