Electrify Canada will be installing an electric vehicle charging station at Toronto Premium Outlets.

weekend, with more expected to return before the end of the month.

"We've been getting a lot of positive feedback from customers," Helena Moniz, mall manager at Toronto Premium Outlets, said. "People are patient and they've gotten used to the new normal."

Despite anxiety about COVID-19, Moniz said, shoppers were eager to visit.

While the mall itself has rolled out specific physical distancing protocols, signage and sanitization, individual retailers are also rolling out their own safety measures, from requiring masks and adhering to distancing and queuing protocols to some checking temperatures at the door.

For now, surface parking is open while the parking garage at the outlets is closed to minimize touch points for shoppers and staff.

Play areas and the food court at the mall also remain closed.

Toronto Premium Outlets (13850 Steeles Avenue) is open Mondays to Saturdays from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. and noon to 6 p.m. on Sundays.

Shoppers who want to refresh their self-isolation wardrobe with the latest can now return to browsing the racks.

On Friday, Toronto Premium Outlets reopened with reduced hours and new guidelines for shoppers.

The reduced hours allow for time to be spent on sanitizing protocols before and after hours.

While the mall reopened with 26 retailers on Friday, six more opened over the
