'THERE IS NOTHING REGULAR ABOUT A TRAFFIC STOP': OPP

#HIGHWAY PIRATES; GUNS, DRUGS AND HUMAN TRAFFICKING IN YOUR OWN BACKYARD

FRANK MATYS

This story is part of a Metroland-wide series on drugs, guns and human trafficking happening along the major highways that run through our communities. For more on this topic visit Highway Pirates — guns, drugs and human trafficking.

Look beyond the plate.

This is what OPP officers are trained to do when stopping drivers for otherwise routine traffic offences on Ontario's highways.

They rely on a combination of internal radar, technology and judgment to read the lay of the land when approaching vehicles that - as experience has borne out - may be bringing guns, drugs and human trafficking our way.

"At times you go in and you believe you are dealing with your mom and pop - your regular person just on their way to go to work, shopping, whatever," said Staff Sgt. Carolle Dionne. "This is where officers always need to remain vigilant, because there is nothing regular about a traffic stop."

That much is evident in numerous media releases detailing the gun and drug seizures that happen along highways leading
