Halton police arrested two men in Halton Hills following a shooting in London that officers believe is related to a rivalry between tow truck companies.

On Saturday, Nov. 12 at approximately 10:20 p.m., London police said the alleged victim was driving a tow truck in London's Adelaide Street South and Osgood Drive area when a rival company's tow truck began following him.

Police alleged an occupant of this rival tow truck pulled out a handgun and fired six shots, with five rounds striking the other tow truck's tailgate and one passing through its rear windshield.

According to police, the suspect tow truck then left the area.

London police were contacted shortly afterward.

London police officers said their investigation led them to Halton Hills where Halton police made two arrests in the 10 Side Road and Trafalgar Road area at 12:19 a.m., on Sunday, Nov. 13.

The 25-year-old man has also been charged with breach of probation, and two counts of possession of a firearm or ammunition contrary to a prohibition order.

The 21-year-old man faces an additional charge of failing to comply with a release order and failing to stop for police.
