Tuesday, June 23

George and Dragon Angels 10
 G.W. Woodworking Blue Jays 6
 Jays Paul Farmer, Jeff Hohendorf, Anthony Giordano, and Todd Prucyk all snagged fly balls, while Brad Densmore counted two homers for a total of 4 RBIs; but Angels' offense proved too strong and Jays were grounded 10-6.

Wednesday, June 24

George and Dragon Angels 8
 Jim and Pat Akers Countryside Phillies 8

Thursday, June 25

Kinsmen Club Expos 13
 Jim and Pat Akers Countrywide Phillies 11
 Brian Hylkema's triple and two RBIs by Sam Southwork helped Expos outpace the Phillies. John Burt and Iain Murphy contributed fly ball catches and Topher Baker claimed the winning RBI.

The Phillies effort included Chris Sheppard's trap of a deep infield fly to end the 3rd. Duane Colgan, player of the game, claimed a double. Jason Estevan, after bunting his way on, managed to steal two bases on the same play.

M.V.P. Sports Pirates 6
 T.D. Bank Padres 5

Kept on contention by Bill Dimitriou's double and a pair of RBIs by Mike Kitchen, Pirates squeaked ahead of Padres after Chris Meyers stole home to tie the game. Stephen Orticello threw six strikeouts in his two innings to pin down the Padres.

M.V.P. Sports Pirates 11
 Kinsmen Club Expos 4

Though Topher Baker and Patrick Manson claimed pop flies on the defensive side, Expos offense was good for only four.

Pirates' Bill Dimitriou cooled one effort by snatching a line drive. Pirates' offense, led by Mike Krause (triple) and Brian Solomon (double) managed to steal home twice, yielding an eleven-run final tally.

Counsellors and leaders from Halton Parks and Recreation Camps held an intensive three-day seminar at Blue Springs Scout Camp last week, reviewing procedures, and learning to recognize the signs of child abuse. Dr. Robert Cranfield delivered a seminar on stress management.

Falcons stay on top

The Georgetown Falcons, with a 3 and 0 record played host to Bolton, also with a 3 and 0 record, last Friday night at Alcott. The outcome as expected was a close score but the score did not reflect the play as the Falcons outlasted the visitors for a 3-2 victory to keep their win record intact and take sole position for the lead in the Peel Halton League.

Joe Clare has been playing superior soccer in recent games and this night was no exception. Joe was everywhere on the field, constantly inspiring his teammates at the same time as he was a thorn on the side of the opposition players. Joe was involved in all three Falcons goals as the home side coasted to a 3-0 lead before faltering and allowing the Bolton team to get back into the game.

Joe Bilick, who usually gets only spot playing time was allowed to start this game and he quickly grabbed his opportunity to show his worth. He and Clare soon began to exploit the Bolton weakness down the right flank and after about 15 minutes Bilik sped down the wing and placed a perfect cross for Clare to meet and finish off with perfect timing to give Georgetown the lead.

Inspired perhaps by Clare's play, Howie Oram and Keith Spiller stepped up their game as first Oram and then Spiller each combined brilliantly with Clare as first Oram scored followed quickly by Spiller. Bolton hardly knew what hit them as they found themselves three goals down after only 35 minutes, but they managed to get one back shortly before half time with a really strange goal.

The ball, from a weak shot was off target, was about to cross the line for a goalkick when the Falcons keeper, George Tzimas, dived to recover the ball only to watch helplessly as it bounced off his forearm over his shoulder into the path of an oncoming Bolton forward leaving him an empty net in which to score.

The second half was a different game as the Bolton squad began to push more and more players forward and put some pressure on the Falcons defence. The Georgetown back four however, were ready for anything their opponents could throw at them. Led by some outstanding play from Tim Racinsky and Tim Davis and ably supported by the hardworking duo of Jay Anderson and Dan Gallagher, the Bolton attack was continually stopped by clever offside traps. The few players that beat the offside trap were then frustrated by the exceptional play of the Falcons keeper who held out until the last five minutes before conceding a well taken goal after some good play by the visitors. The Falcons defence had by this time lost both Anderson and Gallagher to injury and who was there alongside the versatile Derek Oram helping to stem the Bolton tide?? Why Joe Clare of course, finishing the game as he had started it. On top form!!!

The Falcons next meet Chingy at Victoria Park on July 6th at 8:30 p.m.!!

Met moves to town

he knew I played cricket and it's similar to baseball," said Lawrence, whose family moved to Mississauga when he was nine. "My cricket background did help because of the hand-eye co-ordination needed to hit a ball in cricket is much the same in baseball."

Lawrence went on to play for Brantford of the Major Inter-County league before helping Ontario's baseball team capture the gold medal at the 1981 Canada Games. It was there that he caught the eye of the Mets and signed a free-agent contract.

Lawrence credits Ron Cabot with his baseball success. Ironically, Cabot is also a major-league scout, holding that position with the Toronto Blue Jays.

"We spent a lot of time working out together because I had never played until I was 14," he said. "That just goes to show it's never too late."

More and more Canadians have made it to the majors recently, and Lawrence figures, with the right coaching, more can follow.

"I think the Americans get a little bit better coaching and tend to play the game at an earlier age," Lawrence said. "But I also feel that a lot of Canadians, athletically speaking, have the ability to play major-league baseball."
