

New principal at Harrison Public School

Mrs. Milree Latimer is the new principal at Harrison Public School in Georgetown. Interestingly, Mrs. Latimer originally began her teaching career at Harrison in 1961.

Harrison Public School in Georgetown has a new principal.

Mrs. Milree Latimer will welcome students when classes start next week.

Interestingly, Mrs. Latimer originally began her teaching career at Harrison in 1961, teaching primary grades and kindergarten.

Since then, she continued to teach and work in education and has spent 15 years in administrative positions with the Halton Board of Education. Most recently, Mrs. Latimer was seconded to York University's Faculty of Education as a professor. She spent three years there as a course director for teachers in training.

Mrs. Latimer also possesses a doctorate in education.

"I'm very happy to be here," said Mrs. Latimer. "I'll be working with the teachers in a very collaborative atmosphere. We're here to do the best for them and for the children."

Mrs. Latimer said she is very impressed by the caring of the teachers at Harrison. "There's a real sense of community here," said Mrs. Latimer.
