

Hanman not feeling extra pressure

will put extra pressure on goaltenders Jason Sirota and Jamie Szyk, as well as the forwards to not cheat on back-checking duties. However, Hanman figures goaltending will be the key.

"When we signed Jason we told him this might happen," Hanman said. "But I'm confident we'll get good goaltending from Jason and Jamie."

The Raiders forwards corps is a blend of experience and youth. Returnees Todd McKee, Trevor Brandt, Ian Ellis, Trevor Elinesky and Jim English provide the experience, with rookies Jon Levack, Dean Doner and Britton Taylor providing the youth.

As well, the Raiders are looking at Streetsville native Brent Ford, the son of Gary Ford, the former Intermediate Raider standout who briefly coached the Georgetown Jr.

B club.

"He looks like a good find," Hanman said.

As for Hanman, he said patience is going to be his key to success.

"I'm going to have to be," he said. "If we looked at this as a 98-game schedule (total games over two seasons), we're building a good base that next year we'll just have to fill spots on rather than rebuild the entire team."

A good stretch by this Fort Erie second baseman was not quite enough to make an out during play in the Rookie League baseball tournament held at the Fairgrounds last weekend.
