Women followed

Two Brampton women complained to 11 Division police Wednesday evening that they were followed by a suspicious vehicle while visiting a friend in Georgetown.

The two women noted that they were being followed by an old 1977 to 1981 bronze or gold colored Camaro as they turned off Highway 7.

According to police reports, the women say they attempted to lose the suspicious car but it followed them and stayed in the area after they had stopped at a residence.

They could not see the license number, said police. The driver of the car is described as a young man, clean shaven, with long dark hair that was feathered short at the front.

Fabric Care TIPS

NEW TRENDS IN RAINWEAR

Traditionally, rainwear has been worn as protective covering. The trend today is toward multi-functional rainwear which serves as protective outerwear as well as a high fashion garment.

Today, light synthetic water and stain-repellent finishes are being applied to fabrics which are not only functional, but help the fabric retain its hand and drape. These lighter, synthetic finishes enable manufacturers to utilize many fabrics which previously have not been acceptable for rainwear. One of the most popular fabrics for rainwear is silk. DuPont has developed a teflon (formerly Zepel) finish which is applied to lightweight fabrics to make them water and soil resistant. Water-repellent silk makes an attractive garment that travels well and resists wrinkling. Manufacturers are also introducing more interesting texture and color top high fashion rainwear. The traditional gabardines are giving way to a sueded texture, brushed cotton, and wrinkled or crushed texture. Vivid colours also characterize outerwear, including bright shell fabrics and contrasting linings. The new styles, colours, and fabrics of today's rainwear garments dictate more detailed care procedures. For best results have your rainwear cleaned by Barrager's Cleaners.
