Telephone calls from Santa expected soon

This newspaper has learned from a reliable elf that again this year Santa Claus is planning to call children attending Acton and Georgetown Kindergarten and Grade 1 classes.

Calls from Santa are expected on Monday and Wednesday, Dec. 14 and 16 from 4:45 p.m. on.

Since he will be so busy, Santa wishes to thank in advance all participating schools, which will send out forms to be signed by parents, to ensure that no one wishing to participate will be overlooked.

Note to parents: we believe that a few forms didn't make it home last year so if you haven't received a form by now, and your child is expecting a call, please phone Joanne Russell at the Civic Centre, 873-2600 so she can dispatch an immediate telex to the North Pole.

For care and feeding of reindeer, Joanne will be assisted by Georgetown Optimists and other volunteers.

Choral Society's Messiah one night only in Georgetown

By Wendy Long

The music of Christmas is in the air, and what sweet music it is. The Georgetown Choral Society is presenting Handel's Messiah (in the 250th anniversary year of its first performance) at Georgetown's Holy Cross Church one night only - Friday, Dec. 18.

Director Dale Wood has imported four accomplished soloists and the Etobicoke Symphony for the musical celebration at the acoustically beautiful Holy Cross Church. Organ accompanist is Christopher Dawes.

Accomplished guest soloists are soprano Leslie Jost, alto Susan Cooper, tenor Emilio Fina and bass Ross Dodgington.

The Georgetown Choral Society has been performing since 1971 and has been under the excellent direction of Dale Wood since 1975. In 1990 they toured Holland with a stint at Roy Thompson Hall earlier this year. The group features about 64 enthusiastic members.

"It's definitely a Christmas oratory - it's one of Handel's masterpieces," said choir member Vicki Temple. "It's a piece that people are familiar with and that they can enjoy humming along with. We offer a professional calibre in a community choir."

If you can't make the Georgetown performance but can't bear to miss it, there will be one other area show in Brampton the week before (Friday, Dec. 11) at Holland Christian Homes. Both concerts begin at 8 p.m.

Tickets are $15, with a break for seniors and students at $12. They are available from Allstate Insurance, Oxbow Books or by calling a choir member.
