Reflections of 1992

1992 was certainly a year to remember...

Halton Hills watched the Barcelona Olympics, the rejection of the Charlottetown Accord, the Jays grab the World Series. We felt the sting of an ongoing bitter recession, fought proposed landfill sites and welcomed a new paper to the community, to mention just a few top stories.

Throughout today's Halton Hills This Week you will find glimpses of the year as shot by HHTW photographers. There were hundreds of pictures capturing the year's events, but we had to narrow it down to just a few.

We hope you enjoy this thumbnail sketch of 1992.

Bottom right: Halton Hills United Way chairman Bob Malcolmson welcomed Olympic gold medallist and Norval resident Shannon Crawford to the United Way fundraising kick-off luncheon in September.

Bottom left: Mani Mitera, owner of Barrager's Cleaners, showed the spirit of true Halton Hills' citizenship by having a successful winter coat drive. All coats were cleaned and donated to the needy.
