

October...

Although the Charlottetown Accord was resoundingly rejected in five Canadian provinces, it was narrowly approved in the riding of Halton-Peel and our community of Halton Hills.

Approval of the document slated to change Canada's constitution was promoted by an enthusiastic "Yes to Canada" citizens' committee, and MP Garth Turner, who drove a sign into the front lawn of his Georgetown home.

Canadian voters snubbed the Charlottetown Accord, but locally the referendum was a positive event. Garth Turner's town hall meetings saw unprecedented numbers of citizens come out to voice concerns. Local voter turn-out was over 85 per cent.

From politics to health, Halton Hills received a visit from Minister of Health Frances Lankin during a whirlwind one-day tour. Here, Lankin was welcomed to Georgetown and District Memorial Hospital by executive director John Oliver, chair of the board of trustees Connell Smith, and North Halton MPP Noel Duignan.
