Fabric Care TIPS

~ Twenty-eighth of a Series ~
THE TRUTH IS...

Some people have what experts consider a pretty silly idea; that drycleaning causes clothes to wear out. The truth is, it's the dirt and soil that wear out clothes.

A microscopic examination of a garment that has been worn will show the presence of dirt with rough edges. If such soil is not removed, it can have an abrasive effect on the fabric causing the fabric to wear out. Many tests have shown drycleaning solvents do not damage fabric. In addition, drycleaning helps protect your clothes from insects.
