Public input sought on waste water

The first public information centre is being held Feb. 1 for the Regional Municipality of Halton's Class Environmental Assessment for Additional Waste Water Trunk Capacity to service Georgetown. There will be visual displays and staff available to answer your questions between 4 p.m. and 9 p.m. at the Town of Halton Hills' Civic Centre.

M.M. Dillon Limited, consultants for the Region, began work on this Class EA in the fall of 1992. To date, an initial evaluation of the alternative ways to provide the additional capacity have been completed. The alternatives evaluated including development freeze, communal sewage system, reduction of water consumption from existing users and a combination of controlling foundation drain discharge and infiltration will be presented at the Public Information Centre for your comments. The option identified as most feasible, the construction of a new trunk sewer, will be evaluated after the input from the public is heard. The Region is interested in hearing your comments on the identification of the trunk sewer as the most feasible solution and your comments on the four trunk sewer location options presented.

This Class EA is being carried out because the existing Silver Creek trunk sewer, built in 1959, has insufficient capacity to service the proposed future growth areas outlined in the Official Plan. Additional waste water trunk capacity will be required to serve Georgetown west, the western part of Georgetown South and Stewarttown.

This is the second study on the provision of additional waste water trunk capacity. The Region feels that this new study with its scope of expanded work will address the major concerns that were raised previously.

A second Public Information Centre will be held in the spring of this year to present the final evaluation and preferred solution.
