Police Beat

Armed holdup

The Mac's Convenience store at 360 Guelph St. was held up on Friday night at 9:42 p.m. Police say a female clerk was alone in the store when she was confronted by a man wearing an unusual mask. He asked for money and indicated he had a handgun tucked in his belt.

The man then fled on foot with a small amount of money and was last seen running behind the plaza. Police are looking for a white male, six feet tall, an average build, last seen wearing a dark grey-blue, mid-length outer jacket, blue jeans, a powder blue hooded sweatshirt, and white running shoes. The man had obscured his facial features with a layer of bandages and netting.

Shoplifting attempt

A 34 year-old man was apprehended by an olde Hide House security officer as he exited the west side door of the store carrying a black leather jacket which set off a security alarm. Police said the man had tried to tuck the $490 jacket under his own coat. Police have charged a Kitchener man with theft under $1000.

Broken tail-lights

A rash of broken tail-lights were reported to police on Sunday morning in the Delrex Blvd. area between Mountainview Rd. and Hwy.7. The vehicles were all parked in their driveways overnight when the damages occurred. There was no other reported damage to the vehicles.

Who is that masked crossing guard? Elaine Frei wasn't taking any chances with Ole' Man Winter as wind-chill temperatures hit -30°C.
