Water for Glen Williams

grant has come through," Heaton said, acknowledging Duignan's work on the town's behalf. However, Heaton said he knows some Glen residents are concerned about the costs.

The total cost of the watermain project is pegged at $1.6 million. The provincial grant will cover 60 per cent of the cost, with Halton Region kicking in 25 per cent and watermain users providing the remaining monies, a regional public works official explained Tuesday during a telephone interview.

Linda Petelka, budget and development co-ordinator for the regional public works department, didn't have figures immediately available to provide an estimated cost for the average Glen Williams household tapping into the system. However, she said homeowners were given an estimate of the costs involved during a public meeting in the hamlet last November.

Construction of the watermain extension is expected to begin this summer. The project will provide town water to 175 homes, or roughly 560 people, in the Glen.

Water to serve the needs of hamlet residents has been secured over the years through the town's water allocation program.

Acton tower faces opposition

town staff find out which government department is looking after the project and write a letter to them expressing the reservations of nearby residents.

The proposed location of the tower is just east of Acton near the juncture of Highway 7 and Dublin Line. It will face houses along the south side of the highway and will be immediately behind homes in the rural cluster north of the highway.

Dr. Trenton told council that area residents want an opportunity to show CanTel representatives how their tower "will affect our lifestyle, dramatically."

CVCA to hold public meeting

The Credit Valley Conservation Authority will hold a public access group meeting at its office, 1255 Derry Road West on Tuesday, from 7:00 pm to 9:00 pm.

"We are holding these meetings quarterly to bring members of the public and special interest groups up to date on issues surrounding our local environment," says Community Relations spokesperson Robert Peace.

The focus for the Tuesday meeting will be the impact of the new provincial wetland policy on development in the watershed.

"Since our first meeting last year we have had over 30 organizations represented and many more people interested in networking or becoming involved," says Peace. There is a real need to bring together those who are interested in our local environment and exchange ideas and share resources."

"The meetings also give the Conservation Authority an opportunity to hear public concern or questions about current environmental issues and to try and respond to them," says Peace. There is no question that the Conservation Authority needs constant input and support from the public if it is to continue to be an effective, proactive community body."

Those interested in attending, or for more information please call 1-800-668-5557 between 8:30 am and 4:30 pm.

ALL WARDS

- FIRST INSTALLMENT - WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 24TH, 1993
- SECOND INSTALLMENT - WEDNESDAY, APRIL 28TH, 1993

The above installments represent an interim billing for 1993 taxes based upon an average of one-half of last year's residential mill rates. The final tax bill will be issued about the middle of the year and will also be payable in two installments, Monday, June 28th and Tuesday, September 28th.

A penalty of 1 1/4% will be charged on the first day of each calendar month until taxes are paid.
