Region gets Blue Box cash

Noel Duignan, MPP Halton North, has announced that grants totaling $2,631,122 have been approved for the Regional Municipality of Halton to expand its Blue Box program to include several previously unrecycled waste materials. The funding announced on behalf of Minister of Environment and Energy, Bud Wildman, will be under the Municipal Recycling Support Program, a component of the Ontario Waste Reduction Action Plan.

"From the time of its start up, the Halton Blue Box program has been a model for communities in Ontario," Mr. Duignan said. "The Halton Blue Box alone collects about 15 per cent of the waste resources recovered in Halton's residential waste. I am delighted to be able to support Halton's pioneering venture to collect important waste materials like styrofoam, aluminum foil, cereal boxes, flyers and computer paper. The success of Halton's demonstration project will help Ontario reduce waste even more. I am confident that by the year 2000 we will have reduced the waste entering our local landfill sites by at least 50 per cent."

Of the approved grant, $1,109,722 will support Halton's ongoing Blue Box operations. The remaining $1,521,400 will support the expanded collection and commercial establishments.

Halton's Blue Box now recovers a wide range of materials: glass containers, metal food and beverage containers, magazines, catalogues, plastic bottles and hard and soft cover books. New materials to be collected include: aluminum foil wrap and pie plates, cereal boxes, small-mouthed plastic containers, styrofoam and computer paper.

Until now, about 25,500 tonnes were successfully processed and sold annually from Halton residences. The expansion will increase this to 28,500 tonnes per year. A total of 420,000 tonnes of waste material are saved every year by 400 communities across the province.
