don't want to comment, other than to say I'm aware of it (the charge). The councillor said she didn't think it "appropriate" to say anything because "it's going before the court and I'll probably be a witness."

"I will say, I hope the matter is concluded quickly. It has been going on for a long time," she added.

doings. "There was a whole lot of media coverage that this was a secret organization, comparing it to a KGB network, that we were doing spy work for the Board of Education," Jocius said. "It's outrageous. The name were withheld for legitimate reasons under the Act."

Jocius' anger has compelled her to stay with the issue despite having moved to Guelph.

"As taxpayers across the board we need to say whoa, wait a minute. 247 requests, 97 per cent from Oakville?" Jocius said. "They've requested police reports, the police reports came back and they didn't find anything."

The board has offered to meet with the individuals to resolve the situation cooperatively four times and have been refused four times.

Halton Hills trustees Dick Howitt and Dave Whiting voted last October in favor of a provincial review of the Act.

"I hope people can put two and two together and get the facts," Jocius said. "I'm not telling people what to think. I'm saying as a taxpayer you've got a right to ask questions...people have to start asking questions."
